design

Since forming in South Australia in 1961, the BDA is now a national organisation of over 1100 members. The BDA continues to promote the skills and talents of building designers, to ensure a professional and high quality service is provided to the public and maintain a high public profile

BDASA offers membership to corporate entities who provide products and services to the design sector and the building and construction industry.

Corporate Members are able to attend BDASA membership activities at members' rates and build up relationships with our Members through the BDASA's numerous networking opportunities.

Corporate Members have the opportunity to be involved in sponsorship packages to promote their products and services to the BDASA Membership.

Corporate Members are also given an opportunity to promote their products on a regular basis in the format of a presentation at our monthly General Meetings. We encourage these presentations as it is not only a benefit to our BDASA Membership but also to Corporates to promote their products to the Association as whole.

BDASA offers a wide variety of sponsorship packages for your consideration. These packages have been designed to offer your organisation a broad range of opportunities to profile your goods and services to the building design profession together with a variety of means of establishing a strong working relationship with BDASA Members.

However, the Association would be most pleased to tailor a package specifically for your organisation's needs should the various packages we offer not meet your specific requirements.
